

André Boisclair, Adm.A

President and CEO, Urban development institute of Quebec - UDI

André Boisclair, the Urban Development Institute of Quebec's President and Chief Executive Officer, is a well-known public figure. He was the leader of the Parti Québécois from 2005 to 2007 and a member of the National Assembly for more than 16 years, serving as Minister of Immigration, Minister of Social Solidarity, and Minister of State for Municipal Affairs and Greater Montréal, the Environment and Water, at the same time as he was Government house leader.

He has a Master in Public Administration (MPA) from Harvard University and is an administrateur de société certifié (ASC – certified corporate director). Mr. Boisclair is also a member of Econoler's.